

Tiki Tower 2

Tikis are mostly known for depicting deities. Some like to carve them just for fun, with a humorous pose or as though they were telling a story. They are of a Polynesian tradition, but have become widely used as decorative pieces. This particular Island Tiki Tower holds a humorous attitude and looks as though they are laughing at a secret joke. This piece is great for any setting, such as a restaurant, resort or children's museum. We love custom work, so if you'd like different poses or colors, let us know, and we'll get started right away hand crafting your piece. These are made using sturdy materials that are weather and uv resistant. Tikis and torches can set the perfect mood for you Luau themed parties at resorts, restaurants or wedding venues.
