

Parkers Park

WEST, TEXAS

Overview of products:

Crafted a fireman's helmet paying tribute to Joey Pustejovsky and all the other firemen that sacrificed their lives in the West, Texas explosion.

Challenge:

Faced with hard times emotionally young Parker decided he wanted to rebuild the city park that was demolished after the explosion at a local fertilizer plant. The play structure was modeled after the first responders to provide an area of safe play for kids. Child's Play wanted something special to memorialize Joey's contribution to the city. They contacted us at The 4 Kids so we could create a customized large fireman's helmet that doubled as a shade structure atop the playground.

Solution:

The 4 Kids replicated Joey's helmet to double as a shade provider atop the play sculpture as well as to pay tribute to his life. This piece was constructed from the finest materials and is weather resistant. It will remain play ready for years to come. This element of the playground paid tribute to the firefighters responding to the explosion. The 4 Kids worked tirelessly to recreate the helmet on such a large scale and successfully created a masterpiece Parker loved.
